

The United States Blind Golf Association is proud to recognize and induct
Kevin Sullivan
into its 2009 class of the Hall of Fame.

Kevin was born and raised in Framingham, MA. At a very young age, Kevin began working with his father in the family's third generation service station located in Framingham. Kevin and his wife, Carol, have been married for 32 years and are the proud parents of son, Ryan Sullivan.

Everyone has a passion for something when they are young. Kevin's uncle gave him a set of clubs when he was in grammar school and that's when he started caddying.

When in high school, Kevin played football, baseball and hockey. If he wasn't playing, he was the manager or assistant coach. After high school and college, his passion turned back to golf.

It was 1991 when Kevin watched Bill McMahon, a blind person, play golf at a local Lion's Club tournament. Bill needed a coach and Kevin became that person. Having a lot to learn to improve his coaching ability and Bill's game, Kurt Sokolowski, a PGA professional, took Kevin under his wing and became his tutor. Kevin also joined the PGA program and became an apprentice. Bill and Kevin have become quite a team, traveling all over the world playing golf and spreading the acceptance of Blind Golf.

Since 1991, Kevin has helped the USBGA in all aspects of the game and the organization itself. The leaders that he has assisted are Pat Browne Sr., Bob Andrews, Jim Baker, Phil Blackwell and Sheila Drummond. When asked, he has used his knowledge of golf to assist tournament committees and senior rules official Tom Mirus. He has led many golf clinics for the blind and visually impaired at the Perkins School for the Blind, the Carroll Center for the Blind and Guiding Eyes.

Over the years Kevin has instructed other professionals on various approaches to teaching blind golfers and people with other disabilities. Communication is a key element.

Currently Kevin is the teaching professional at Millwood Farms Golf Club, Framingham, MA, and Southborough Golf and Learning Center. Kevin is also a Past President of the Framingham Lions Club.
